

Fascia Iliaca Compartment Block

This procedure blocks pain in the thigh or knee, which may appear after certain leg surgeries such as total knee replacement.

PLACING THE NEEDLE

The physician inserts a needle through the skin and lateral to the femoral nerve.

END OF PROCEDURE

Next, a mixture of anesthetic medicine is injected through the needle. The medicine spreads to the nearby nerves, blocking the pain signals.